August 2020 - August 2021

After the Blast
Emergency Response

Red Oak provides specialized mental health and psychosocial (MH/PS) services to at-risk women and girls, and children and their caregivers affected by the Beirut explosion

The Beirut Port explosion on August 4, 2020 highlighted a humanitarian crisis with significant immediate and long-term ramifications. More than 200 people were killed, 6,000 injured, and roughly 300,000 residents displaced, including approximately 100,000 children. Numerous urgent needs surfaced among the residents of Lebanon's capital, namely: access to alternative housing, healthcare, education, food security, welfare services and legal aid. The impact on children was severe, around 1,000 children were injured, many suffering deep cuts to their hands and faces. The children affected by the blast were exposed to collective trauma, displacement, and the loss of family members. According to UNICEF, an estimated 600,000 children showed changes in behaviour or signs of trauma and extreme stress and were in need of psychosocial support.

The trauma of the explosion, coupled with the growing threat of increased COVID-19 cases and wider economic instability in Lebanon, has left children and adults alike traumatized and in need of psychosocial support. Furthermore, an estimated 150,000 women have been made homeless following the disaster. With the destruction of safe shelters, privacy and dignity have been undermined, and the risk of sexual and gender-based violence increased significantly for women and girls residing in damaged houses, temporary accommodation, or

F. M. (Support group sessions for women)

In the beginning, I was a very negative person, sad and full of disappointments. I had many problems from the blast that have an impact on my children and my life in general. I was a real woman, and this role appeared in my outside work.

After when I got to know the association and the project working in it, my life changed and my eyes opened to realize that I did not know the meaning of their about. I was convinced of the importance of completing my education that I was forced to leave at the age of sixteen.

With the support of La Galilé, funded by Fondation de France, Red Oak launched a project entitled "Healing Through Art" which focused on providing support group sessions for children, art therapy for families and a training on positive parenting.

A team of professional psychotherapists, specialists, and counsellors provided individual MH/PS sessions including individual psychological support for caregivers and individual parenting sessions. The caregivers communicated their fears, worries, feelings, and the challenges they are facing after the blast as well as their needs for parenting support to address the impact of the blast on the behaviour and wellbeing of their children. The sessions were designed and adapted based on the individual and group needs, and beneficiaries showed significant improvement. The results from the outcome surveys showed that 70% of the caregivers expressed that they had positive feelings (less anxious, safer, and hopeful) and can understand and address children's needs and behaviours after attending the therapy sessions. Moreover, 91% felt that the sessions responded to their needs in terms of managing their stresses, improving their mental health status, and dealing with their children.

Outreach activities:
Since the Beirut blast, our volunteers have been actively doing door-to-door visits to give psychosocial support to vulnerable families and individuals in Burj Hamoud, Karantina, Mar Mikhael, Basta, Khazek El Ghazek.

M. S. (Support group sessions for caregivers)

The psychological support sessions were very useful, first because of COVID I was laid off from work for about a year and then I became stressed and then came the explosion in Beirut that harmed me both physically and psychologically and damaged my house, so I became walking from fear and anxiety.

The sessions gave me support, helped reduce the fear, I became stronger and calmer again.

I was able to almost get rid of the explosion experience that were bothering me. The sessions also encouraged me to persevere and think more positively despite the circumstances in which we are going through Lebanon, thank you.

HOW TO DEAL WITH SOCIAL AND EMOTIONAL STRESS DURING COVID-19

Anonymous (Individual therapy)

"I improved a lot with the sessions I had with you, I felt a lot more with myself and became optimistic towards life. The atmosphere in the house was so sad and depressing but after the sessions my attitude towards my children changed for the best and the atmosphere in the house became more optimistic and cheerful. I am very impressed with the work you do and the perseverance you have in the follow up with the people you treat"

HOW TO DEAL WITH SOCIAL AND EMOTIONAL STRESS DURING COVID-19?
Red Oak organized a workshop on how to deal with social and emotional stress during COVID-19. The training provided participants with tips to overcome stress in a healthy and safe way to solve problems and enhance their social and emotional well-being and communication skills.
